AIM & SCOPE

The First Day of Study on Composite Materials and Energy technologies (CMAET) is a meeting of exchanges and debates for researchers and industrialists concerned by the new innovations in composite materials. They encourage also the creation of working and experts groups according to their activities in order to study the future challenges in the composite materials domain. The papers submitted can relate to one or more of the topics listed hereafter, they can be extended to new axes in order to ensure a wide diffusion of composite materials in other fields.
